User Reports
Sophia & Leying

Molly Liu

- What is your (first) impression of this product?
  - The page design is cute, and it fits the theme of healthy dessert.
- What do you think about the usability of the product, is it easy and clear to use?
  - It is helpful and you can learn about health by using it
- What are the good things about this product?
  - It is cute and the topic is interesting and innovative
- Is there anything you think could be improved?
  - The fruit choices could be multiple choices, for those who want to add all of them, such as me.

Mason Liu

- What is your (first) impression of this product?
  - It's very well designed in terms of color, drawing, and highlighted message
- What do you think about the usability of the product, is it easy and clear to use?
  - It's clear to use and easy to use since there are only two interactive buttons with high contrast words. The first one also leads to the second, which is convenient
- What are the good things about this product?
  - It's not heavy worded, very user friendly
- Is there anything you think could be improved?
  - I personally would enjoy seeing some dynamics (making the dessert drawings jumping around for example, or incorporating some background music)

Tracy Cui

- What is your (first) impression of this product?
  - It's a really fancy and pinky page
- What do you think about the usability of the product, is it easy and clear to use?
  - It is clear to use
- What are the good things about this product?
  - I think it's pretty clear and rational for people who want to know the ingredients

- Is there anything you think could be improved?
    - I just feel like it has too many texts, which sometimes is a bit hard to read

Chris Yao

- What is your (first) impression of this product?
    - I think this product has a pretty interface
- What do you think about the usability of the product, is it easy and clear to use?
    - I think people with questions about their health can use this product to make their desserts. I think it is easy and clear to use.
- What are the good things about this product?
    - Background with comfortable color, cute dessert picture
- Is there anything you think could be improved?
    - I think it would be better if it could show the details about how the product come out with the scores

Jason Jiang

- What is your (first) impression of this product?
    - Cute and practical
- What do you think about the usability of the product, is it easy and clear to use?
    - It is very easy to use and very clear, and I can learn how to make desserts with healthy recipes from the result page
- What are the good things about this product?
    - It is easy to learn about healthy life
- Is there anything you think could be improved?
    - Provide more options to meet users' needs

Analysis

The common answer for the impression of the webpage is that users think it is cute and consistent with the theme of healthy desserts, because the color tone is pink, brown, and green, which can make users think about desserts. Overall, the user reports from five users showed that the page design is easy and clear to use with high usability. Users also feel the webpage is helpful for them to learn more about how to make desserts with healthier recipes, and know the healthy degree of different ingredients. They feel interactive by selecting ingredients they want to add and have a score of their healthy degree. We could improve the webpage design by giving more options for the questions, such as providing more ingredients they can choose to add to the desserts or allowing multiple choices, and we will have little changes to the final recipes according to users' choices of ingredient to make the result more interactive and personal. We could also add more decorations to the website by adding animations and background music, but these are kind of hard to code, so we still need to study and work on it.